Budget Fight in Senate

Dent Says Party Wants Full Hearing; Some Democrats Threaten Filibuster

HARRISBURG (UP)—The fate of Republican legislation to slash $94,500,000 from Gov. George M. Leader's two year Commonwealth budget hinges next week on the slender 27-23 GOP vote majority in the state Senate

The Senate will take up the $1,107,000,000 General Appropriation Bill during a five-day session but both Republican and Democratic members indicated they would throw up roadblocks. A stalemate also would upset GOP plans to adjourn the Legislature in two weeks.

Senate Majority Leader Rowland B. Mahany (R-Crawford) said the chamber would give "due deliberation" to the GOP cuts inflicted by the House to bring the 1957-59 fiscal blueprint into a $1,500,000,000 pattern.

However, an apparent crack in party lines appeared with some hard coal region senators reported against slashing the governor's five million dollar industrial development request to $1,500,000. The development program was designed to help areas hit by unemployment to attract new industries.

Senate Minority Leader John H Dent (D-Westmoreland) warned his bloc would "use every parliamentary means at its disposal" to get a full hearing on the budget. Two other Democrats, Sens. Joseph J. Yosko (Northampton) and William J Lane (Washington), have threatened to filibuster against the Republican cuts

Republican leaders also face trouble in the House where the Democratic minority can create an appropriation bill logjam temporarily by withholding some votes for the so-called "non-preferred" money legislation for state-aided colleges, universities and hospitals.

Two-thirds Vote Needed

The appropriations require 140 votes and at least 14 or 15 House Democrats would have to join a solid GOP bloc to clear the bills to the Senate.

The House GOP also may have an intra-party battle when it attempts to pass a $31,300,000 school subsidy bill. Pittsburgh and Philadelphia delegations have threatened to fight passage of the subsidy as being "unfair" to their cities.

While the GOP wages floor battles on their economy drive backstage juggling was expected to prevent the Republicans from being impaled on their own budget shears. With little "leeway" in the GOP budget and additional money bills ready for introduction the GOP is expected to give some hard thought to the $41,500,000 manufacturers' exemption.

A House Appropriations Committee source said the Republicans already decided the state's debt for the biennium ending today would be 80 million dollars, or two million dollars under earlier estimates. The lower deficit figure would give the GOP a further "cushion" for any more money bills and cuts restored by the Senate.

A key House Republican also indicated the GOP faced a close shave in balancing their budget. He said a proposal to push back the effective date of the manufacturers' exemption from the capital stock tax from Jan. 1, 1958 to 1959 was under consideration. He said the move would give the Republicans another 20 million dollars. The exemption will go into effect automatically unless extended by legislation.

The House returns Monday at 11 a.m. est and the Senate at 3 p.m.

British Hydrogen Bomb Test Expected to Bring Protests

LONDON (UP) — The explosion of Britain's second and mightiest hydrogen bomb was expected today to touch off a new wave of protests against nuclear weapons tests both at home and abroad.

The thermonuclear device was detonated Friday in the skies over the Christmas Island proving grounds in the mid-Pacific. Air Vice Marshal W. E. Oulton, the British H-bomb task force commander, said the bomb's power was in the megaton range, or equivalent to one million tons of TNT. Unofficial reports said the superweapon packed a punch equivalent to that of five million tons of TNT.

United Press staff correspondent Richard Voumard, one of the newsmen who witnessed the awesome blast, reported it was believed to be the first known test of an H-bomb capable of delivery by an unmodified medium bomber. In his report, Voumard said it was a truly operational weapon which Britain's "V" series bombers can haul from bases in Britain to targets as far away as Moscow.

Third Atomic Power

Britain joined the United States and the Soviet Union as a major nuclear power when it touched off its first hydrogen bomb on May 15. The test brought angry reaction from the opposition Labor Party and official protests from atomic-conscious Japan.

Voumard was one of a handful of correspondents who witnessed the H-bomb test from the deck of the 1,590-ton British frigate H.M.S. Alert, some 35 miles away.

The device was dropped from a white - painted RAF Valiant jet bomber at an altitude estimated at some 45,000 feet between Christmas and Malden Islands.

Squadron Leader David Roberts, 33, the pilot, dropped the bomb in a complex corkscrew maneuver that set it spinning into space like a pitcher's curved ball while the four-jet bomber raced to safety.

"Bomb gone," radioed Flight Lt. Kenneth Lewis, 33, the bombardier. A few seconds later, a tremendous glare washed out the sun above the test area. White light bore through the protective goggles of observers standing with their backs to the blast on the ships 35 miles away. Observers

Taxicab Holdup Suspect Held By State Police

State Police yesterday arrested Robert E. Harn, 29, of R. D. 1, East Millsboro, in connection with the armed robbery of a Charleroi taxi driver a week ago.

Arrested in Brownsville, Harn was given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Raymond Curley, of Charleroi, on charges of armed robbery. Curley ordered Harn to Washington County jail without bond to await grand jury action.

The robbery took place last Friday night when taxi driver Nick Karpiak, 1147 Lincoln St., Charleroi, took a passenger into his cab in Charleroi. The man's destination was Bentleyville.

On a lonely stretch of road between Beallsville and Bentleyville, the passenger pulled a gun, took $6 from Karpiak and then drove off in the cab leaving Karpiak afoot.

The cab was found later the same night near LaBelle, Fayette County.

Police said Karpiak identified Harn as the man who robbed him and stole the cab. Harn pleaded not guilty before Squire Curley, police said.

Billy Graham Takes on Titans Of TV Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) — Evangelist Billy Graham takes on two titans of television tonight when for the first time in his career he will preach a full sermon on a live telecast from coast to coast.

Graham will be in a viewer rating battle with Perry Como (NBC) and Jackie Gleason (CBS) when the American Broadcasting Co. telecasts his 17th Madison Square Garden sermon in his New York Crusade.

His only other "live" television preachments were carried all over Scotland in a crusade there. He will be back-to-back tonight with two television personalities who have fought tooth and nail for top Saturday viewing raings.

An overflow crowd is expected to attend the telecast sermon in Madison Square Garden.

Graham did not announce the text of his sermon.

The 38-year-old North Carolinian preached Friday night on the Sixth Commandment, "Thou shalt not kill."

After Graham's sermon 749 persons made their way down the aisles of the giant sports arena to register "decisions for Christ." So far 10,739 persons have made "decisions" since the opening of the New York Crusade. A total of 297,000 have attended Graham's meetings.

46 Are Facing Charges In Turnpike Scandals

Carnahan Suspended One Year

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A police trial board recommended Friday that acting Lieutenant Allen Carnahan, who was shot with his service revolver in an after-hours club last February, be suspended for one year without pay.

Carnahan's attorney, Louis Glasso, thanked the board "for extending mercy" and said he would not appeal to the Civil Service Commission.

"This closes it as far as we are concerned," Glasso said of the incident, which had rocked the city police force with charges top officers tried to "cover up" the shooting.

The city administration, represented at the hearing by two assistant solicitors, had asked for the most severe penalty possible — dismissal from the force.

The trial board's recommendation goes to Mayor David L. Lawrence for action.

Is Found Guilty

The board, composed of two inspectors and a lieutenant, found Carnahan guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer. The defendant specifically was charged with giving misleading statements in connection with the shooting, handling his revolver in an unprofessional manner and associating with persons of questionable repute.

Carnahan was shot in the thigh and groin in the downtown ABA Club Feb. 24. He changed his story of the shooting a number of times, but earlier this week at a hearing for Shirley Cavanaugh, 28, who had been charged with the shooting, he testified it was accidental. He gave the same testimony at the police trial board hearing.

Miss Cavanaugh was called as a witness at Friday's hearing but did not testify on the advice of her attorney, John V. Snee, who said her testimony might incriminate her.

Carnahan's testimony conflicted with that of Police Superintendent James W Slusser and Assistant Superintendent Lawrence J. Maloney, who testified he told them in Allegheny General Hospital the day after the incident that Miss Cavanaugh had shot him.

The recommended one-year suspension for Carnahan, who was head of the vice and narcotics squad, would date from last March 5, when his temporary suspension went into effect.

Korean Mother, Child on Way To See Father

TOKYO (UP)—The 20-year-old Korean wife of an American soldier left with her young son today on a mercy flight to the bedside of her critically injured husband in Arkansas.

Mrs. Tae Moon Cherry carried gently in her arms her 1-year-old son, Marvin, whose sudden illness sent him to Tokyo Army Hospital Friday and made it uncertain they would be able to make the trans-Pacific trip.

American Red Cross officials escorted mother and son to the DC6 specially chartered by the Army for the flight. They took off from Tokyo at 5:10 a.m. e.d.t. and expected to reach San Francisco by tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Cherry, near hysteria from worry, had threatened to storm Tokyo Army Hospital and take her son out by force if necessary. However, doctors said the boy was sufficiently recovered from dysentery to make the flight to join his father, Army Specialist 3-c Harris V. Cherry.

Cherry was reported near death in the Army-Navy General Hospital in Hot Springs, Ark., from injuries received in an automobile accident near his home at Monticello, Ark., last week.

American Red Cross officials will meet mother and son at San Francisco Sunday and they will arrive in Hot Springs Sunday night or early Monday.

Doctors in Arkansas had appealed to military authorities in the Far East to rush Mrs. Cherry and the boy to the soldier's bedside to give him "more will to live."

25 More Indicted by Dauphin Grand Jury; Some Named Before

HARRISBURG (UP) — The number of persons indicted in the Pennsylvania Turnpike scandals rose to 46 today after Dauphin County Grand Jury returned true bills against 25 more individuals.

Cited again were former Turnpike Commission Chairman Thomas J. Evans, Coaldale, and suspended Commissioner James F. Torrance, Export, both Republicans. Each had been named in previous indictments.

However, action was postponed temporarily on a presentment recommending indictment of suspended Commission Chairman G. Franklin McSorley, Pittsburgh Democrat, and Evans and Torrance for alleged excessive expense accounts while active on the agency.

The indictments returned by the May Grand Jury Friday included 23 new names in the mushrooming scandals. All had been recommended for indictment by an investigating grand jury which concluded its inquiry last April.

Cited for Conspiracy

All except one of the 25 named in the 16 indictments returned Friday were cited for conspiracy in purchasing of cinders, calcium chloride or automotive equipment. But some of them were named again on separate counts of perjury, bribery, cheating by false pretenses and malfeasance in office.

Some were former or suspended commission employes and others were officers or employes of firms engaged in turnpike business.

Dauphin County District Attorney Huette F. Dowling of Dauphin County said the expense account presentment was not submitted to the grand jury because a "further check" was being made by the Justice Department on that phase of the case.

Dowling said the trials of those named in the latest indictments will not be held until "sometime next fall." The trial of 22 persons named in earlier indictments was slated to get under way in Harrisburg next week.

Lists Charges

Those indicted Friday and the charges against them were:

—Victor Prep, Frackville, owner of the Prep Co.—perjury and bribery.

—Donald S. Heagy, Camp Hill, former turnpike purchasing agent, —conspiracy and bribery.

—August H. Brentari, Harrisburg, successor to Heagy as purchasing agent — conspiracy and bribery.

—John Sides, Manheim, turnpike employe—false pretense.

—Francis L. Lanaugh, Everett, former turnpike employe — perjury.

—Harris Cohen, Harrisburg, and Brentari—conspiracy.

—Hyman Morrison, Brentari and Heagy on separate indictments for bribery and conspiracy.

—T. J. Evans, Norman Richards Sr., Coaldale, official of the Panther Valley Insurance Agency; Walter Evans, also associated with the agency, and Mrs. Evelyn Gaydos, Coaldale, agency secretary—all for conspiracy in con-

800,000 Starving In Pennsylvania, Red Paper Says

MOSCOW (UP) — The newspaper Soviet Russia said today more than 800,000 persons are starving in the state of Pennsylvania and that 60 per cent of American families earn less than the minimum living wage for a family of four.

The article was provoked by a recent issue of the U.S. Information Agency's magazine Amerika, which is published in Russian for exclusive distribution in the Soviet Union.

Amerika had described in a glossy picture spread the life of a factory worker's family in Burbank, Calif., showing their home, automobile and other material conveniences.

"We have no basis to doubt the authenticity of the published material," Soviet Russia said, "but do many Americans live like this?"

"No," most definitely, the paper claimed. Amerika approached the subject "not altogether objectively, to put it mildly," it said.

The paper said 60 per cent of America's families earn less than $4,500-$5,500 a year, which it said "United States experts" call the minimum living wage for a family of four.

Unemployment in 1956 touched the nine million figure in the United States, the paper said. As a result, it asserted, more than 800,000 in Pennsylvania are starving.

Macmillan Gives Elizabeth Okay For U. S. Visit

LONDON (UP) — Authoritative sources said today Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has given official approval for a state visit to the United States by Queen Elizabeth II. The Queen's decision is expected within a few days.

Under the British constitution, state visits must be cleared by the government before the monarch can consider them. Informed sources reported some hesitation earlier because of the Anglo-American split over Suez.

The sources said the Queen's decision will depend on whether she feels she can stand up to the strain of such a tour. Elizabeth already has made state visits to France, Portugal and Denmark this year.

There is no question of the Queen making a visit to the United States in the near future, the sources said. The decision now is whether to make it in time to take part in the 350th anniversary of the founding of Jamestown, Va. this fall, or wait until next spring when a trip already has been set to Canada.

Gasoline Tax Drop Is Effective Today

Most Monessen service stations will wait until their present supply of gasoline is sold before passing on the one-cent drop in prices following a reduction of the state gasoline tax from six to five cents last midnight.

Some stations in Monessen and surrounding communities put the tax reduction into effect when they opened for business this morning.

Passing along the savings to the consumer was left to the discretion of independent retailers but spokesmen for the major oil companies said the cent-a-gallon reduction "definitely" would be in effect at company-owned stations.

J.E. Stevens, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Petroleum Association, said letters were mailed to all wholesalers early in the week advising them the tax drop would call for price sign changes. The letter also noted that if station owners failed to drop prices public support might be won for bills pending in the Legislature to raise the levy again.

The extra penny was imposed by the Legislature Sept. 13, 1955, to raise funds for emergency flood relief in eastern and central sections of the state hit by floods resulting from hurricane Diane the previous month. The tax brought in an estimated 54 million dollars for use in rebuilding roads and bridges in the disaster areas.

The tax reduction sparked a heated fight in the General Assembly last March when Gov. George M. Leader asked retention of the extra penny to help finance a proposed 720 million dollar road building program.

The Republican-controlled Legislature rebuffed the governor and said a large surplus existed in the emergency fund and the Motor License Fund. They voted to abolish the tax at the end of the 1955-57 fiscal period last midnight rather than permit it to expire next Sep. 13 as originally enacted.

New Page Plant to Be Open for Inspection

The partially completed $225,000 new wire patenting plant at the American Chain & Cable Co., Inc., will be open for public inspection when open house is held at the Page Works Tuesday, Harvey W. Seymour, general manager, announced today.

The open house is being held in connection with the Monessen Chamber of Commerce "Cy Johns Day" celebration here Johns, a former plant manager here, now is president of ACCO.

The new building, which is expected to be ready for operation in August, is 600 feet long and 78 feet wide. It will provide 46,800 square feet of manufacturing and storage space. It has a steel frame with an asbestos cement sheet covering.

Seymour said the new plant will enable rearrangement of existing facilities, along with expansion of wire mill operations. New patenting equipment, replacing old and obsolete equipment, is now being installed to materially increase the output capacity of drawn steel wire by some 400 tons a month.

During Tuesday's open house, the working facilities of the entire plant will be shown to give the public an idea of the scope and variety of products manufactured at Monessen.

Products developed in Monessen and other ACCO plants throughout the country will be displayed in the new building. Refreshments will be served to all visitors during the open house from 9 a. m. to 2:30 p. m.

Tying in with the plant display will be some 15 local merchants who have given over part or all of their window display space to exhibit the various ACCO products.

Thursday evening at 6:30 at the Slovak Home, Johns will be guest of honor at a dinner given by the Chamber. He is expected to talk on his experiences with ACCO and recall some of his days living and working in Monessen.

While plant manager here, Johns and his family lived in Grandview Heights.

A burglar broke into the Sanford Motor Co. garage at 262 East Donner Ave., Monessen, sometime between 9:30 last night and 8 o'clock this morning and looted cigaret and coke machines and a tool box, police reported.

Entrance was gained by removing a pin from a sliding door in the rear of the garage. Once inside, the burglar broke into the coin boxes of the two machines and took an undetermined amount of cash.

your family name and pride

Tomorrow a salesman may ring your doorbell. He is ringing others in this community every day.

On a basis of fancy sketches, he will try to sell you a family lot in a partially developed cemetery. He may even offer you a bargain—IF YOU ACT THAT VERY DAY.

Ask yourself. Is it wise to make a decision on impulse that will last through eternity? Do you want a family cemetery lot on which you are forbidden to express your family love or perpetuate your family name in the traditional American way—by the erection of a monument of granite or marble?

Take the time to think it through. Common sense and family pride will dictate your decision. You'll buy your cemetery lot in an established monument cemetery the same as leading citizens in this community have done for generations.

A mission study and a business session featured the May meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Marion Presbyterian Church held in the church social rooms on Wednesday evening. The president, Mrs. Thompson Kirby, was in charge.

The theme for the month was "Christ's Way Every Day" — Through All Our Days".

Mrs. Carl Russell was the devotional leader and she reviewed a chapter of the study book "Jesus Teachings on Citizenship" and the subject was "Plenty and Want". The group singing of "Make Somebody Happy Today" and "To the Work" opened and closed the program.

Mrs. Kirby was the topic leader with the discussion, "Indonesia" and she was assisted by Mrs. Thomas Liptrot and Mrs. James Todd.

Mrs. Kirby read a letter from the National Missionary headquarters telling of the injury of Emilie Clark, a missionary, which the group assisted in supporting. She was hurt in an automobile accident and is now a patient in the Sage Memorial Hospital in Arizona. A report was also given on work at Palmer Hospital, Alaska.

Announcement was made of a summer retreat to be held at the Mt. Vernon Church on July 10.

Marshall Plan 10 Years Old

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH

WASHINGTON (UP) — The multi - billion - dollar Marshall Plan, which spawned the present foreign aid programs, was born 10 years ago Wednesday.

As its anniversary approached a storm raged around its offspring — the mutual security program.

An economy - minded Congress is set on chopping foreign aid to the bone. President Eisenhower already has trimmed his request from $4,400,000,000 to $3,865,000,000 but some legislators want much deeper cuts.

The Marshall Plan itself, however, is regarded as a success by both friend and foe of foreign aid.

Achieves Near Miracle

Supporters say it achieved "a near miracle" during the three and a half years of its active life. Even the bitterest oponents of continued foreign aid concede that the Marshall Plan was necessary.

The program cost American taxpayers about 12 billion dollars. But it saved Europe from economic collapse and put the 17 participating nations back on their feet. Otherwise, they might have fallen easy prey to Communism.

The historic plan was put before the world in general terms on June 5, 1947, by then Secretary of State George C. Marshall in a speech at Harvard University. The soldier - statesman pledged that any European government willing to assist in the job of recovery would find "full cooperation . . . on the part of the United States."

"The role of this country," he said, "should consist of friendly aid in the drafting of a European program and of later support of such a program so far as it may be practical for us to do so.

"The program should be a joint one, agreed to by a number, if not all, European nations."

Swift Response

The European response was swift. Western European leaders accepted and the idea was off and running. But the Soviets balked and refused to let their satellites join.

Marshall got the basic idea nearly two months before its public unveiling in the most unlikely of places—the Kremlin.

On April 15, during the Big Four foreign ministers conference in Moscow, he had a private conference with then Soviet Premier Josef Stalin. It convinced him the Soviets had no intention of trying to ease Europe's distress but rather wanted to increase tensions.

Marshall decided then and there that if anything was to be done about European reconstruction, it would have to be done by the West. He put the State Department's policy planning staff to work and the Marshall Plan was the end result.

The general idea was to spend four years pumping American goods, services and know-how into Europe to get the war-torn economies back on a healthy footing. The European nations would have to take the initiative in planning the recovery program to receive American help.

Open Hearth Lights Are Replaced Here

Everything is seen in a new light at the open hearth department of Pittsburgh Steel Company's Monessen Workd. And it's a much better light.

Mercury vapor lights — over six times as powerful as previous lights — have been installed in the open hearth shop. They've lit the place up as it has never been lit before.

In the case of Pittsburgh Steel's open hearth shop, artificial light previously consisted of three-bulb clusters with a total output of 900 watts. The new lights are rated at 3,000 watts each. They hang just 45 feet from the floor.

The new light units were engineered to further improve working conditions. Each new light casts a brilliant light of 120,000 lumens, the engineers' way of measuring the intensity of light at the source. The total output of all the old light fixtures was 250,000 lumens.

Called "High Bay Reflectors" by Westinghouse Electric, the lamps are designed to light up large, dark areas found in steel mills.

It's actually easier for Pittsburgh Steel Co., electricians to replace a tube than it is for a housewife who must climb a step ladder or stand on a chair and stretch.

The electrician merely has the huge overhead crane lift him to the reflector and puts in a new lamp which is similar in appearance to a fluorescent light tube.

Only difference is that the tubes cost nearly $40 each, in addition to the cost of the units and transformers.

Each light unit has its own switch but the entire row is kept on day and night.

Blast Rocks Observer Ships

Some 50 seconds after the "bomb gone" announcement cracked through the radio receivers, the shockwave brought the rumbling crash of a thousand thunderclaps to the observers on the six-ship task force standing 35 miles away. The ships rocked gently.

A huge multi-colored fireball hung high in the sky—changing colors as it swelled, yellow-orange, red, pink. A giant swirling stem reached up from the sea to form the familiar mushroom of the atomic explosion.

Within seconds after the blast, Canberra twin-jet bombers roared in to sample the fall-out to tell scientists how efficient this bomb was.

Indonesia Faces Its Greatest Challenge

By JACK RUSSELL

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UP)—Government officials agreed today Indonesia faces one of its greatest challenges in regaining control of two "bad boy" provinces which are running away with the nation's fortune.

President Sukarno is convinced Indonesia's economic stability can never be restored until Sumatra and East Indonesia — now ruled by rebellious military councils—again submit to central authority.

But how to bring them to their knees without touching off new political explosions presents Indonesia with its greatest and most delicate challenge for survival.

Indonesia, comprised of 3,000 islands and 80 million people, has been under a state of war and siege since March 14. Temporary government leaders appointed by Sukarno one month ago comprise the nation's 17th government in 11 years.

Never Economically Sound

The government has never been economically sound, and the situation has grown steadily worse since rebels in rubber - rich Sumatra and East Indonesia seized control of 75 per cent of the nation's exports and revenues several months ago.

The provincial problem which erupted into open revolts in December brought the collapse of Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo and his coalition cabinet. This set the stage for Sukarno's attempts to replace his Western - style government with a "guided democracy", made up of all political parties, including Communists.

The president has indicated he wants to get tough with the rebel leaders. Government sources say the "tough" line is also advocated by army chief of staff Maj. Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution.

But Premier and Interim Defense Minister Djuanda, appointed by Sukarno last month to head a 23-member "emergency extra-parliamentary cabinet of experts" takes the opposite view.

Calls For Compromise

Djuanda has frequently called for a compromise with the regions which revolted when they believed they were not getting a fair share of returns from revenue normally handed over to the Jakarta government.

A compromise would mean more home rule and a greater share of the wealth of Sumatra and East Indonesia to be used for local development. According to political observers, it would also mean restoring confidence and trust in the central government, which has been damaged by Sukarno's call for "guided democracy."

The observers believe Djuanda may soon be faced with either giving in to Sukarno's wishes for tough action against the provinces or resigning his temporary post. They doubt that he can find a half-way point that will satisfy both sides.

Propaganda Deluge From Harrisburg

IF OUR MAIL is any indication, some of the bureaucrats in Harrisburg have been working harder the last couple of weeks than they worked in the last two years.

The occasion for this burst of effort, of course, is the fight in the legislature over Governor Leader's budget. The Republican majorities in the Assembly are trying to hold the line against further tax increases, and this is requiring a paring down of the departmental requests for all sorts of programs, some new, some old.

So newspaper offices are being deluged with letters and press releases — even telegrams — from just about all the departments and bureaus in Harrisburg. And all of these communications are intended to convey the impression that the world will come to an end if such-and-such appropriation for this-or-that program isn't approved in its entirety.

For instance, a telegram from the Secretary of Forests and Waters advised us the other day that the Jack's Run flood control project in Greensburg is in danger of having its funds cut off.

Two or three times a day, it seems, we get mail from the Department of Commerce which seems mainly concerned for its industrial development program.

The Department of Welfare is quite excited about a number of its activities, including the mental hospitals. The Department of Public Assistance keeps telling us that people on relief just can't live in the style to which they are accustomed unless the budget cuts made in the House are restored.

* * *

AND SO it goes. We do not recall ever having received such a bombardment of governmental propaganda.

Yet, even with the reductions approved by the House, the Governor will have more money to spend for just about everything than any Governor of Pennsylvania has ever had in a similar period previously.

The Republicans in the legislature are doing nothing they did not promise to do last fall when the people gave them control of both houses of the Assembly. They promised to hold the line against increased expenses and higher taxes, and that is what they are doing.

Our suggestion to the anguished administrators would be that they save the wear and tear on the mimeograph machines as well as the postage, do the best they can do with the money the legislature gives them and then, if they are still so minded, take their case to the voters at the next opportunity.

If the people want economy in government, there is no way to get it without giving some government activities less money than their supervisors think they need.

Another Chapter

THE DAUPHIN County grand jury has produced another series of indictments involving present and former personnel of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, contractors and others.

In what news dispatches describe as the "second phase" of the continuing investigation of the Turnpike Commission, three persons have been charged with the crimes of perjury, bribery and conspiracy. Among other things, the alleged offenses are said to involve work performed by Turnpike employes with Turnpike materials on the private property of Turnpike officials.

Previously, 25 persons had been indicted in the "first phase" of the probe. These included two members of the Commission and one former member. Governor Leader has suspended the two present members, and they in turn have challenged the Governor's authority in a separate legal action.

A mere recital of the legal chapters of this story is enough to indicate that the courts are going to be busy for a long time with the affairs of the Turnpike Commission. So sweeping are the charges to be tried against so many persons that it may require several months to bring the proceedings to a conclusion.

Meanwhile, the legislature undoubtedly will be given various suggestions which it may wish to weigh in changing the administrative setup of the Turnpike. These include one by Governor Leader, who would abolish the Commission entirely and transfer the management of the Turnpike to the Highways Department. The legislature has received this suggestion with marked coolness.

All of this fuss and muss in connection with the Turnpike takes some of the shine off a project which, from an engineering standpoint, was a pioneer effort pointing the way to another spectacular progress in highway development.

From Washington—

Stassen Is Making a Comeback

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Harold Stassen is on the comeback trail again — and, as usual is making some headway.

His escalator back up the political ladder is something which he has in part fashioned himself by sheer inventiveness and vitality.

Mr. Drummond

This escalator is the conference table at London where the United States and the Soviets are apparently getting nearer to agreement on disarmament than at any time since the end of World War II.

I do not suggest that Mr. Stassen is yet within sight of anybody's presidential nomination or that the Republicans would even let him run for the governorship of Pennsylvania.

But I do report that he is winning new repute from many in Washington by the able, resourceful way he is handling himself during the often exasperating disarmament talks in London. And many here who were inclined to dismiss him wholly after his Nixon fiasco — on the ground that he had dug himself deeper into his political pit than Benny Hooper fell accidentally — are now having some second thoughts.

Stassen Watched

These second thoughts do not reach as far as saying that Mr. Stassen is likely to re-emerge as a very weighty force in national Republican politics. But it is significant that those who relished seeing him involved in the most monumental toe-stubbing in political history, are reading the disarmament news with unusual care — and with some anxiety.

Their immediate anxiety is not whether they can trust the Russians to stay militarily disarmed, but whether they can trust Stassen to stay politically disarmed.

You haven't forgotten Harold Stassen, have you? He was the "boy Governor" of Minnesota and one of the first Republicans to begin to defeat new Deal opponents on the state level in the mid-thirties. From then on he kept one manufacturer busy doing almost nothing but making Stassen hats to throw into presidential rings.

It never worked out, but Mr. Stassen finally made Washington as one of President Eisenhower's chief aids. Then, whoosh, he tried to ditch Nixon as Ike's running mate, and Republican Chairman Hall pulled the switch so fast that Stassen never knew the current was turned on.

Stassen tried to put the mantle on Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts and Herter put the Mantle right back on Nixon. Stassen predicted that Nixon would drag down Eisenhower's vote by a fatal six per cent and the President ended up by getting a popularity majority nearly twice as large as the first time. Whereupon Stassen said, maybe so, but, hang it all, he still thought that if some other vice presidential candidate had been running, the Republicans would have carried Congress. Well, in politics, you can't hang a man for saying something that can't either be proved or disproved.

Ike Kept Him

Not that there weren't plenty of Republicans who would have been delighted to hang Stassen both before and after the 1956 election.

But there was one Republican who doesn't believe in punishment or recrimination after a political difference has been ironed out or played out. That Republican was Dwight Eisenhower. Most politicians expected Stassen to be let out, and the President wouldn't have to have done much more than drop a paper clip to bring it about.

Mr. Stassen was not dropped. He was demoted from Assistant to the President to Assistant to the Secretary of State, two layers removed from the President.

Mr. Eisenhower kept Stassen because he respected and valued his ability as a public official — able, hard-working, alert, dogged and determined.

For the first time Mr. Stassen was the principal representative of the U. S. in face-to-face disarmament negotiations with the Soviets and apparently he was just what the Russians needed — just as stubborn and persistent as they were. They couldn't fathom him at all times — any more than we could. He could not be swerved from his objective.

The fact is that Mr. Stassen has retrieved much of his prestige within the administration and deservedly enhanced his reputation outside the administration.

Of course, when 1960 approaches, I suspect that most Republicans would be willing to compromise on Stassen — that is, compromise by having him sent away as Ambassador to Moscow.

It's a Fact—

To protect the life of the President and to suppress conterfeiters are the two statutory duties of the U. S. Secret Service.

On December 27, 1776, George Washington was made dictator of the United States, the only one we ever had.

Today and Tomorrow—

Policy with a Broken Back

By WALTER LIPPMANN

There can be few left among us who do not have serious doubts about our China policy. For it is not possible to shrug off the anti-American riots in Formosa as if they were an unfortunate accident which has nothing to do with anything significant. Whether or not there was official complicity, the indubitable fact is that whoever incited, organized, equipped and directed the rioters knew he could count upon a deep and widespread popular resentment against Americans. This resentment shows that our China policy is not woking well even among the Chinese whom we are protecting and subsidizing.

Mr. Lippmann

It is often supposed that the President is by no means an unqualified believer in our China policy but that for the sake of peace with Congress and inside the administration he has put the issues on ice. Thus in public at least, he has avoided a reappraisal which might be very agonizing to many of his friends.

There is, however, no way of postponing the reappraisal much longer. For it is becoming very evident indeed that our China policy has no future, that time is running not, and that the real question is whether there is still time and opportunity to save the things that matter the most.

What Is Our Policy?

What is our China policy? A good way to get at the inner principle of it is to ask and to answer the question, why are we uncompromising in our boycott of Red China and so much less uncompromising in our relations with Red Russia? The key to our policy is the fact that besides the Chinese in Formosa, there are some ten million Chinese in Southeast Asia. In Singapore, they are three-quarters of the population. In Malaya, they are two-fifths of the population.

In those countries which have diplomatic relations with Red China, (Burma, Indonesia and Cambodia) the Chinese tend to look to Red China for guidance. In the countries recognizing the Nationalists, such as South Viet Nam, Thailand and the Philippines, the Chinese tend to look for guidance to Formosa.

The object of our China policy is to keep the overseas Chinese separated from the Red Chinese government, and thus to prevent it from ruling and from representing all the Chinese.

Some years back when the Nationalist Chinese had been driven off the mainland, and were first installed in Formosa, the overseas Chinese were entitled to believe that eventually, with American help, the Chinese government in Formosa would fight its way back to the mainland and become again the government of all of China. Thus there was hope for the anti-Communists that they would go home triumphantly. For the neutrals there was some good reason to remain sitting on the fence. As long as the Red Chinese were weak and distracted by the problems of the revolution, while the United States, which then had a monopoly of nuclear weapons, was so strong, the China policy had a credible foundation.

Invasion Ruled Out

It no longer has a credible foundation. When in 1955 President Eisenhower asked Congress for a guarantee of Formosa and the nearby islands, he also took the necessary measures to prevent Chiang from making war-like moves against the mainland. Indeed, the President put an end to the idea that the United States would back an invasion of the mainland. He went even further and made it clear that the United States would not permit Chiang to attempt an invasion. All this was, no doubt, a sound and prudent diplomatic action to prevent dangerous and foolish adventures.

But it broke the back of our China policy. It deprived the Chinese in Formosa of any hope that they could return to the mainland except by coming to terms with Red China. Ever since then, our China policy has had no future, and has been no more than a holding operation, designed to put off as long as possible a deal among the Chinese themselves.

Our attitude toward trade with China and our attitude toward letting American newspapermen go to China, are part of this holding operation. They are a rather desperate and forlorn attempt to keep the Chinese in Formosa from coming to terms with the Chinese on the mainland. Thus we are trying to induce Britain, Germany and Japan, as well as Western Europe, to restrict trade with Red China more severely than they restrict trade with Red Russia. As this means merely that Russia becomes the broker through which China trades with the rest of the world, the restrictions are not substantial. They are psychological. The purpose of the restrictions is to make the overseas Chinese feel that all the world, outside of Russia, is the enemy of Red China. For the same kind of psychological reason, Mr. Dulles and Mr. Robertson do not want to let American newspapermen go to Red China. They are afraid it would discourage the overseas Chinese and reduce their determination to oppose Red China.

'Two China Policy'

The rational solution would have been what is called the Two China Policy — to establish Formosa as an independent and neutralized state under the protection of the United Nations as part of the bargain which admitted Red China to the United Nations. Both Chinese governments are on record against such a solution. But it is still the best and indeed the only solution which corresponds to the whole reality of the Chinese situation — to the fact that there is a Chinese community which is opposed to placing itself under Communist rule, and that there is on the mainland of China a powerful government which cannot be ignored.

The question is whether it is too late to deal with the situation by a negotiated compromise, like the Two China Policy. If it is too late, then, unless the improbable happens and there is a counter-revolution on the Chinese mainland, we must look forward — with the Formosa riots as a warning sign — to the disintegration of our China policy.

Some random thoughts about the commencement season:

Why, I wonder, are commencement speakers forever "challenging" the graduates? I have the impression that about three out of every five commencement addresses are variations on the "challenge" theme.

Now they even have the graduates doing it. Did you notice that of the three speeches on the Monessen High School commencement program — the imported oration and the speeches of the two valedictorians — all contained the word "challenge" in their titles?

I did not attend the exercises and hear the speeches, so this isn't a criticism. But I just wonder whether so much challenging can really be very effective.

This is going on all over the country, too, as the schools and colleges put their graduates through the climactic ceremonies of the educational year. Undoubtedly we are the most challenged people in the world.

Someday some original character is going to make a commencement speech in which he simply says to the boys and girls: You have had some fine opportunities here. I hope you made the most of them. If you did, I congratulate you and have no doubt that you will go on to whatever is the next step in your life adequately prepared. If you didn't that's regrettable and the next step for you is quite apt to be more difficult than it would need to be.

There — that ought to fix it so I'll never be asked to make a commencement speech.

Happy or Sad?

We had a mild argument at our house the other evening as to whether commencement is a sad or a happy occasion.

One part of the household was saying that she wept when she graduated from high school and that this was the proper reaction. For were you not ending a happy period of life and being separated from many friends with whom you had shared all kinds of experiences? And is this not cause for tears?

No, said I. How are you going to have arguments if everybody agrees with everybody? Or else all the important occasions of our lives are sad, for don't they nearly all mean the end of one chapter and the beginning of another?

For four years, my unanswerable logic went on, you work and slave. You diligently pursue the courses which interest you and try to outwit the teachers in the others. A million times you tell yourself what a grind it is, but you carry on because the ultimate prize seems worthwhile.

And all this points to the moment of graduation when your achievement is recognized before mankind and the faculty. And you tell me this is a time for tears? How mixed-up can you get?

Like most of the dinner-table arguments at our house, this one ended without a formal decision being rendered. But nobody is in any doubt, really, as to who won.

Entrance Problems

In my school and college days, the big accomplishment was to get out by completing the course and graduating. But these days, it seems, just getting admitted to a school is a major accomplishment.

The high school graduate of my day, if he was going on to college or university, usually just decided which institution he preferred and submitted an application which was more than likely to be accepted if the individual was at least two cuts above a moron.

Once admitted, he was subject to a weeding-out process which was more or less rigorous depending upon the standards prevailing at the particular institution.

Because—more people are going to college nowadays, the admissions procedures have become more selective. By various methods which are represented as being scientific, the colleges are trying to do their weeding-out before the students are enrolled.

I'm sure this process is necessary. When there are more applicants than there are places to put them, there has to be some orderly way of determining who gets in and who stays out.

But one awkward effect I've observed already is that some high school seniors are inclined to consider that just getting admitted to a college is a jewel in their crowns. And I'm not sure this is a good attitude with which to approach higher learning.

Then, too, I hope all the college admissions officers know exactly what they are doing in each case. The president of one of our finest universities said not long ago that he was glad he is where he is because he was pretty certain he couldn't meet the entrance requirements of his own school. And in line with the same thought, an admissions officer is supposed to have measured the known facts about Winston Churchill at the college age against his college's present standards. And you know what? That's right. Sir Winston couldn't have been admitted.

Visit to Marshland Always Rewarding

By JOHN H. DAY

Tennyson's brook, which came from "haunts of coot and hern", hasn't got a thing on me, I'm just back from magnificent marsh country where the white-billed coots find watery haven and the great-blue herons have established a tremendous rookery. Bobolinks were singing in the meadows edging the marsh. The wooded areas were full of active, colorful warblers. The tiny "spritzing" showers that passed occasionally across the land scrubbed clean the May-fresh face of the countryside, bearing sunshine and bird-song and wondrous outdoor beauty in their wake.

Each year I managed a trip to this enchanted place, where spatterdock and skunk cabbage share the muck-land with tall cinnamon fern and the soggy spagnum moss. Here you pick your way with care. One misdirected step can send your boot down through the ooze toward China and deposit you flat on your face in the steamy fen, while mosquitoes roar in for the kill and the fat bellies of all the frogs in the neighborhood shake with laughter at your bemired flounderings.

There are eagles' nests to be reconnoitered, rare bog orchids to be hunted out, even a beaver dam or two to be inspected. But the most fascinating place of all is the heron rookery. Here, in a grove of great tall beeches, the herons have established a community nesting quarters, returning year after year to this rookery. Each couple simply relines with fresh twigs the platform of sticks high in the treetop which has served a previous generation as a nest.

Cross Fences

To approach this aerial nursery you walk through a meadow where bobolinks laugh in the sun and a pileated woodpecker goes looping along on some woodland errand. You cross two fences, finally entering a stand of open woodland playing host to countless violets.

You probe deeper into this woodland, hearing with one ear the song of a redstart, when the treetops ahead suddenly resound with the harsh, rasping squawks of the alarmed colonists. Another step or two and you are in another world, a strange place where the air above is full of great birds circling in noisy alarm, their long legs trailing out behind. All through the trees, high up, are the bulky nests, often as many as three in one treetop.

The insistent clamoring of the hungry nestlings, sounding much like the muffled clucking of a barnyard fowl lost in the woods, underscored the indignant uproar raised by the parent birds. A great bird comes soaring majestically in, the very model of grace and dignity caught by all the Japanese screen painters, to land awkwardly on the edge of the nest and become suddenly a most comical looking feathered bag of bones.

How that four-foot-tall bird, with those long spindly shanks for legs, can settle down and brood the three or four bluish-green eggs, is a mystery. Yet very seldom does an egg fall through the rickkety lattice of the nest, although shell fragments can be picked up all through the area.

I love to watch the great-blue deep in lily pads and water weed, deep inlily pads and water weed. He looks like some sharp-shouldered feathered bag, with pipe-stem legs and yard-long face. He's a sort of tripod with a pair of wings, standing there looking down his endless nose. With him patience is an easy virtue and he stands there silently, solemnly, hour after hour, waiting for fish and frogs and small reptiles to come within range. Then suddenly that strong sharp bill strikes true to the mark and his patience is its own reward.

If you do not often see the heron you can see where he has been. Close by the pond in the soft mud you can note where he has walked with dignity, leaving footsteps that proceed precisely. He may not have large ambitions but he is purposeful and does not turn aside.

A visit to his nesting rookery there in the tall beeches just back far enough from his favorite marshes is better medicine than all the patent nostrums ever devised. To see these winged fishermen about their domestic activities, to pin them down in the glass and note how wild and shy and suspicious they really are, is to wonder how any wanton gunner can slaughter them on the flimsy premise that they eat too many fish.

I recommend the big heron as a useful citizen well worth knowing. Seek him out and you'll never regret having made his acquaintance.

Big Six May Have 'Dispute'

The Big Six Football Conference, which has operated since 1925 without a dispute, may have one now that the first formal constitution has been written. It seems the newly-formed organization, which will be governed by school principals, excludes Redstone. According to a Conference spokesman, Redstone was not included in the 1957 set-up because the Black Hawks failed to send representatives to a series of "constitutional talks." . . . On the other hand, Redstone claims it was informed of only one meeting and that the school principal was unable to attend due to a death in his family. The Hawks, who definitely want to stay in the organization, figure they are being shuffled out of the Conference without a proper hearing.

* * *

By the way, if Redstone is ditched, then the Conference will probably go back to its old name of Big Five. Behind-the-scenes sources indicate that Monongahela is leading the fight to have the Hawks ousted. A couple of other schools are most sympathetic. Since joining the Conference in 1952, the Hawks have won just one title. The big gripe is that visiting teams are subjected to unnecessary abuse by Redstone fans . . . Penn State's first baseball team back in 1889 won all of its nine starts. No other State team was able to post a perfect record until the current club.

Send Bucs to Coast, Redlegs Here

One of our pressmen, Tony Romales, comes up with this interesting suggestion: "Why not send the Pirates to the West Coast and give Pittsburgh the Cincinnati Redlegs?" . . . Amen! . . . Mike Mendicino, a pitcher in the Monongahela PONY League, has already fanned 45 batters in three games so far this season . . . Jan Sikorsky, the Ramsay boy who set a national javelin record for schoolboys recently, has attracted attention from everywhere. College scouts from all over the country are looking him over. The other day a representative from Southern California turned up to talk to Sikorsky, pointing out that USC "treats track and field in the same manner it does big-time football or basketball." . . . Sikorsky, by the way, is also quite a footballer.

* * *

Frank Zoretich, the standout Monessen High football center who also knows his way around the classroom, has apparently decided on Clemson College . . . Three other MHS footballers, Robert Burns, Carl Crawley and Maurice Mathieu, have received offers from Dayton University . . . Still another Greyhound athlete, tracker Bill Donnell, has received an academic aide at Wilberforce . . . Some 700,000 Little Leaguers throughout the country will observe the first annual LL Foundation Day on June 14. The observance has been timed to coincide with Flag Day.

Oldsters Picking Up Tickets

Lou Miller and Mel Cook have picked up their tickets for the S. S. Townsend testimonial next Tuesday in West Newton. They played for Towney back in the teens and early twenties at Monessen High . . . By the way, efforts are being made to round up the entire WPIAL championship MHS basketball team of 1918-19. Tickets for the affair may be secured from this reporter at $2 . . . Ralph Forquer, Latrobe High basketball coach, has scratched his name from the list of five contenders for the Greensburg vacancy. Reportedly a majority of the Board favors James Sibley, of Shannock Valley, but there's considerable "outside" pressure for Bill Douglass, of Brentwood, who formerly coached the Lions.

Mays Paces Giants to 3-2 Win over Pirates

PITTSBURGH (UP) — The Pirates didn't mind Willie Mays extending his hitting streak to 19 games, but his running really ruined things for the local club Friday night.

The fleet New York Giants outfielder turned on the speed after Ray Katt flied out in the eighth inning and beat a throw from Roberto Clemente to Hank Foiles at home plate to give the Giants a Jamestown, N. Y., club in the May's left foot caught on Foiles' shin guard and the Giants' star was thrown into the dust, giving his teammates a scare. The New York players rushed to the prone Mays and helped him to the dugout, but Mays later returned to his centerfield spot.

Close as Usual

The Pirates' past five games were one-run decisions and the local club lost three of them.

Gene Freese sent the Bucs off to a 2-0 lead when he singled with the bases loaded in the fourth scoring Clemente and Frank Thomas. But the Giants, who were able to reach Pittsburgh starter Luis Arroyo for only two singles in six innings, collected four singles in the seventh to tie the score.

Mays was hitless in three trips to the plate but in the eighth he re-enacted his "Frank Merriwell" role with loser Roy Face on the mound by doubling off third baseman Freese's glove, the ball rolling into left

Hank Sauer then bunted to Face, who turned to third to make the play on Mays. But Freese wasn't at his spot and there was no play. Katt then flied out and Mays scored.

The Pirates announced Friday the signing of Michael A. Donatelli, 18, Roslindale, Mass., who played the outfield and infield for Boston College. He will report to the Jamestown, NY, club in the Class D. Pennsylvania-New York League.

Johnson Stops Hinnant in First

NEW YORK (UP) — Harold Johnson's first-round knockout of Clarence Hinnant could earn him a shot at the light-heavyweight title this year.

That's what matchmaker Billy Brown of the International Boxing Club said today about the muscular Philadelphian, who flattened Hinnant of Washington, D.C., with a booming right to the chin for a knockout at 1:21 of their TV fight in St. Nicholas Arena Friday night.

"It all depends on what champion Archie Moore does," Brown explained. The Tony Anthony-Yvon Durelle winner on June 14 expects to challenge Moore for the title. But if Moore doesn't sign for a defense by July 7 and his title is vacated, Johnson could fight the June 14th winner for the vacant crown."

Myfords Defeat Ravens

Don't look now, but the Ravens are in the City Softball League cellar with no wins and two losses!

They were sent to those lowly confines yesterday when the Myfords pounded out a 4-1 win at City Park.

And it was an old Raven — pitcher Tony Turcaso — who engineered the embarrassment. Turcaso limited the Birds to seven hits and just missed a shutout.

The Myfords scored all four of their runs in the first inning. Don Shrader was the offensive hero with a two-run homer.

After that outburst, Raven pitcher Ed Chuprinko was mighty stingy. He once retired 13 batters in a row, but the damage had already been done.

The Ravens' only run came in the fifth when Tom Derrico delivered a timely single with a mate at second.

Kilbane, Former Champion, Dies

CLEVELAND (UP) — Former featherweight champion Johnny Kilbane, who won all but four of his fights in the ring, failed in his battle against death.

The popular battler, one of the greatest fighters in the history of the ring, died Friday at his home after a long fight against cancer.

Before leaving boxing, Kilbane rang up two outstanding marks. He held a title longer than any fighter except Joe Louis and he won 138 of 142 bouts during his career.

He won the featherweight crown on Washington's Birthday in 1912 with a 20-round decision over Abe Attell at Los Angeles. After grabbing the title, he fought more than 90 times in the next 10 years. However, only a handful of the battles were title fights.

Kilbane retained the crown until March of 1923 when he suffered a six-round knockout at the hands of Eugene Criqui of France.

Kilbane had been in ill health since February and he underwent an operation in March.

He died without knowing the name of his toughest foe.

City Flavor to Startlet Bowling

There was a Monessen flavor to last night's title rolloff in the Startlet Bowling League — the most travelled ladies circuit in the Pittsburgh district.

Two Monessen women bowled for the championship Irwin Jacktown team while one city product bowled for the runner-up Uniontown Mt. Vernon club.

Mary Palm and Babe Kroskie took part in the Jacktown victory. Palm rolled a 480 total while Kroskie turned in a 460.

On the losing side, Pauline Burdock represented the city.

Jacktown won the match by 128 pins.

Three-Way Tie in Little League Play

A three-way tie for first place has developed in the National Division of the Little League, while Park Service has moved in front of the American Section.

Knotted for the lead in National play are the Elks, CIO and Legion, all with two-one records.

In play yesterday, CIO tripped the Elks, 8-6, while Legion rolled over the Lions, 21-14, in the wildest game in LL history.

In the American Division, Park Service nipped VFW, 6-5, and Page Local handled the Ravens, 13-4.

Larry Davis hit a home run and double but his Elks team lost anyway to CIO. Ronald Altemare fanned ten batters as he earned credit for the pitching win.

Legion scored 11 runs in the fifth inning while swamping the Lions. The losing pitcher, Hughes, set some sort of a record by walking 17 batters.

Nip VFW

Park Service tallied a run in the seventh to nip VFW, 6-5.

Hotz led the winners at bat with a double and two singles. For VFW, Beeler had a homer, double and single.

Page Local coasted to an easy win over the Ravens. Kelemen led the attack with a double and single. Barton was high for the losers with a two-bagger and single.

Kelemen also received credit for the pitching win, fanning ten.

Two Monessen Little League baseball teams tested their patience of their parents yesterday.

Ozarks Lose Again To Charleroi, 8-3

Briggs Stops Monessen on Five Hits in Valley League Contest

Charleroi's power-laden Merchants had no trouble handling the Monessen Ozarks again last night at Ninth Street Park in Mon Valley League action. This time the score was 8-3.

Fred Briggs, veteran Charleroi hurler, limited the Ozarks to five scattered hits. He helped his own cause at bat, too, with a home run.

Roy Barli also homered as the Charleroians stroked a dozen hits in all.

The win kept Charleroi atop the MVL standings with an 8-3 record.

In the first inning, Charleroi tallied a run on no hits. Dean Cheesebrough walked and moved to second when George Zuraw was hit by a pitched ball. An error permitted Cheesebrough to come across.

Two More Runs

Two more Charleroi runs scored in the third inning. Fred Briggs, homered for one while Cheesebrough and Barli hit successive doubles for another.

In the fourth, the Ozarks made it close with a run. Mel Clickovich got Monessen's first hit, moved to second on a infield out and tallied on Neil Hill's bingle.

Charleroi put the game out of reach with two-run outbursts in both the fifth and sixth innings. In the fifth, Cheesebrough and Barli both singled. Larry Papini singled them home.

A frame later, a clean single by Stan Milchovich and two infield hits loaded the bases. Then followed two errors, permitting two runs to score.

Barli Homers

In the seventh, Barli homered to complete the Charleroi scoring.

Meanwhile the Ozarks picked up a pair of consolation runs in the sixth. Clickovich walked and Pappy Johnson beat out a hit. Hill then doubled them both home.

Bad Putts

Stay down on the putt! Unless you consciously guard against it, you might come up too soon in your anxiety to see short putts disappear into the cup. This results in "trying to wish the ball in the hole," which is futile.

To offset this, stay down over the ball until the stroke is completed and the ball is well on its way. Some good putters never watch the ball on the way to the cup on short putts and just stay in position and listen for that welcome "plop."

My idea, however, is that this method overdoes a good thing. You lose a certain amount of perspective on these putts. Simply make certain that you complete the stroke before your head moves, but follow the roll of the putt with your feet still planted in their original stance positions.

The advice handed out today can be summed up easily: "Stay down on the putt." Hit the ball with a definite, one-piece putting stroke, and follow through with the putter head moving straight toward the objective (© 1957).

Chisox Increase Lead to Four Games, Thanks to Great Pitching

By MILTON RICHMAN

Al Lopez never had it so good at Cleveland.

With the Indians, Lopez had some mighty fine pitching, but he's getting an even better brand at Chicago where every starter on his staff is pitching in with the kind of complete game victories that could bring the White Sox their first pennant in 38 years.

It was Bob Keegan's turn Friday night and the 34-year-old right hander came through with a sparkling four-hit, 6-0 victory over Detroit that increased the White Sox American League lead to four games.

Catcher Sherm Lollar gave Keegan all the margin he needed when he blasted a two-run homer off Frank Lary in the first inning and Walt Dropo added a little icing to the cake with a grand-slam homer in the eighth.

Baltimore defeated the second-place Yankees, 3-1; Kansas City beat Cleveland by the same 3-1 score, and Washington edged Boston, 3-2.

Cards Beat Braves

In the National League, St. Louis topped Milwaukee, 4-3. Philadelphia nipped Brooklyn, 2-1, and New York defeated Pittsburgh, 3-2. Rain washed out the Cincinnati-Chicago game.

Ray Moore held the Yankees to five hits in out-pitching Bob Turley. Al Pilarcik put the Orioles in front with a third inning homer and then drove in another run with a sacrifice fly in the fifth. Turley was chased in the sixth when he walked in Baltimore's final run.

Billy Hunter's two-run homer and Ned Garver's four-hit pitching helped the Athletics to their triumph over the Indians. Hunter hit his homer off Tribe starter Cal McLish, who was knocked out of the box when the A's scored all their runs in the third inning. Garver faced only 30 men in gaining his fourth victory.

A two-out single by Jim Lemon in the ninth inning off Tom Brewer brought Herb Plews home from second base with Washington's winning run. The Senators, who scored their sixth victory in the last seven games, tied the score at 2-2 in the eighth with the help of Brewer's wild throw. Tru Clevenger was the winner in relief of Russ Kemmerer.

Rookie Eddie Kasko batted in the winning run for the Cards with his fourth hit of the game in the eighth inning. Wally Moon ran his hitting streak to 24 consecutive games with a sixth-inning double. Lindy McDaniel went the route for St. Louis for his fourth victory while Juan Pizarro suffered his fourth loss.

Phils Move Up

Robin Roberts and Willie Jones teamed up to beat the Dodgers and move the Phillies within 2½ games of the first-place Redlegs. By losing, Brooklyn dropped two games back of Cincinnati. Roberts gave up six hits, one was a homer by Roy Campanella, the 236th of his N.L. career. It tied the league record for a catcher set by Gabby Hartnett. Jones won the game with a two-run triple off Don Drysdale in the fourth. Willie Mays extended his hitting streak to 19 games with a double in the eighth inning and subsequently scored on Ray Katt's sacrifice fly with the run that beat Pittsburgh. Pirate starter Luis Arroyo blanked the Giants on two hits until the seventh when they tied the score at 2-2 on Whitey Lockman's single with the bases full. Reliever Al Worthington was credited with his fourth victory.

Plan Big TV Deal If Teams Move to Coast

NEW YORK (UP) — There's a huge pot of gold, in the form of a multi-million-dollar pay-as-you-see television deal, waiting for the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants in California.

The deal was made public when Mark Sullivan, president of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., said in San Francisco Friday his firm is negotiating with the Skiatron Corp. of New York to set up a coin box, closed circuit television network on the West Coast if and when the two clubs transfer there.

The Dodgers, it was reported here, would receive a 10-year contract at two million dollars a year to televise all their home games at Los Angeles and probably their road games also. The Giants could participate in the same deal at San Francisco.

Presently, the Dodgers receive a $750,000 annual TV - radio income at Brooklyn while the Giants get $600,000 for their rights.

Real Complicated

"It is a complicated problem, but technically it is feasible and we think arrangements could be worked out that would be mutually satisfactory," Sullivan said.

Skiatron already has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for permission to set in operation pay-as-you-see TV.

The FCC shortly will authorize testing of the various pay - TV plans in certain areas of the country. Coinbox TV has not been approved by the government as yet.

The San Francisco Examiner reported that Dodger President Walter O'Malley already has accepted two million dollars as part payment for the closed circuit TV rights at Los Angeles. The Examiner said O'Malley used the money to purchase the Los Angeles franchise in the Pacific Coast League last year.

They won the coveted Pete Sance Award by copping first place in the 1957 edition of the plant bowling tournament.

The Millwrights edged another Blooming Mill team, the Electricians, in a best-of-five series.

Carl Breuer, vice-president in charge of operations at Pittsburgh Steel, presented the Sance trophy. The new champions also got a union award from Tony Orotolona, president of Local 1229.

Since the tournament was first organized back in 1952-53, the Open Hearth has controlled things. That is, up until this year.

The Millwrights ousted the favored Open Hearth bowlers in semi-final action. The Electricians moved up by beating Blast Furnace.

15 Leagues Enter

In all, 15 leagues entered teams in the tourney.

The finalists provided some exciting bowling. The Electricians won the first match, 755 to 702. The Millwrights came right back to even the count, 698 to 640 but the Electricians moved ahead again with a 762-757 score.

With their backs to the wall, the champions came through with two straight wins on scores of 759-633 and 780 to 677.

Andy Valko was high for the winners with a 163-734 series for five games. Andy Drahobecky chipped in with 186-701.

For the runners-up, Robert Havran had 150-658 and Mike Kizman, 176-651.

Penn State Wins Regional Tourney

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (UP)— Cal Emery, Penn State's versatile sophomore baseball star and his unbeaten teammates, will represent District Two in the NCAA world series next week at Omaha, Neb.

Emery played first base Thursday and put Penn State in the district final at Ebbets Field by hitting a two-run homer in the ninth inning for a 2-1 victory over Manhattan. Friday Emery switched to pitching and hurled Penn State to a five-hit, 5-0 victory over St. John's in the final.

Emery struck out eight and walked four while scoring his ninth 1957 victory.

Emil Viola of St. John's gave up only six hits in the seven innings he pitched but the Pennsylvanians rocked him for four runs in the fourth. Jim Lockerman and Ron Ramey, Penn State outfielders, contributed doubles in the fourth as the winners scored their 19th straight victory.

Texaco Spring Check-up at Bart's Is Aid to Your Car

Mr. Motorist, you'd be wise to drive right now to Bart's Texaco Service station, official AAA station at the corner of Third and Schoonmaker in Monessen, and have a Texaco Spring check-up!

"Mr. Service," your Texaco Dealer, sees all, does all, when it comes to expert car care. He will give yours a real Spring lift carefully check the many seemingly small trouble spots in, under and around your car — such as lights, tires, radiator and battery. And, not by chance but by chart, everything that should be lubricated gets the proper grade and quality Texaco lubricant.

One stop and you're on your way, all set for safer, surer, more enjoyable driving. So now's the time to see your Texaco Dealer, the best friend your car has ever had. He really knows how to put Spring in your car! Drive in . . . float out!

To protect your engine the crankcase will be drained and refilled with Havoline Special 10W-30 the all-season, all-temperature motor oil! It not only lubricates, it protects against wear, adds life to your engine. You enjoy quicker starts, more power, better gasoline mileage.

To safeguard your transmission your Texaco Dealer is specially trained and skilled in caring for your automatic transmission. He will bring it up to proper level, or replace old fluid with Texaco Texamatic, in accordance with your manufacturer's recommendations.

To cushion your driving the chassis will be lubricated according to a special lubrication chart covering your make and model car — with superior Texaco Marfax. It assures you quieter driving, easier handling, and that cushiony feeling for 1,000 miles or more.

To power your engine two great gasolines! Top Octane Texaco Sky Chief with Petro — to give you all the knock-free power your engine, new or old, can deliver. Plus protection against harmful engine wear and deposits. Plus greater gasoline mileage. Or — famous Fire Chief — to give you lively power at the regular gasoline price. Both gasolines are 100 per cent Climate-Controlled to give you quick starts and freedom from stalling.

A trip? "Mr. Service" will get you free road maps with routes indicated, plus the latest highway information, from Texaco Touring Service. When you're on the road, stop where you see the familiar green and white Registered Rest Room sign, a convenience for you — clean across the country.

Another Texaco convenience: A Texaco credit card is the only one honored in all 48 states — and in Canada, too . . . wherever you see the red star with a green "T".

When you get a pair of those men's Bates shoes at the Runfola Shoe Store and Shoe Hospital, that modern shoe establishment located between Second and Third on Schoonmaker avenue, rest assured you are getting comfortable, economical shoes that are priced right.

For Bates shoes have achieved a name for themselves all over the country just as they have in Monessen and the Valley where Mr. Frank Runfola has sold them for some years now. You'll never find a disgruntled customer and a Bates man always returns for the second pair after long and comfortable service with the first pair.

There's a size and style for every man in Monessen and you'll be amazed at the low price when you take quality into consideration.

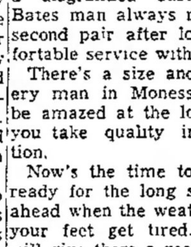
Now's the time to buy and get ready for the long summer days ahead when the weather is hot and your feet get tired. Bates shoes will give them a rest and you can walk and relax in comfort.

Bates shoes are slippery free where your foot bends — which is one reason why they are so easy on the feet, easy to wear.

The Runfola Shoe Store and Shoe Hospital also has a fine selection of ladies' and children's shoes so Mr. Man, bring yourself and your entire family here for shoes that will wear and look good on the feet at the same time — and that won't hurt your pocketbook when you are outfitting everyone.

You'll be surprised at the savings you'll realize.

Mr. Runfola also does shoe repairing and has been in this business in Monessen for many years.



John Says:

Last night I dreamed I got tangled up in the gasoline hose and woke up with the sheet wrapped around my neck.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Mabel Gordon, who died two years ago tomorrow, June 2, 1955.
What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see;
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But in some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.
Sadly missed by Husband and Sons

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Isidore Moundros, who died four years ago today, June 1, 1953.
When life threatens to make us blue,
We cling to a memory to carry us through,
Feeling that somewhere you are standing by
Ready to help when you hear us cry
And so dear father your life of love
Is a precious treasure from Heaven above
Your grave we tend with loving care
For part of our heart is buried there.
Sadly missed by Wife and Children

Laymen Training Is Needed

PHILADELPHIA (UP) —Seminaries should be established for the instruction of laymen to further the "phenomenal growth" of the lay ministry, the American Baptist Convention was told Friday night.

D. Elton Trueblood, professor of Philosophy at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., said something must be done for the man "who has more zeal than knowledge?"

"What we shall need, before we are through, is a great many layman's seminaries," he said. "is it not an amazing fact that in a country predominantly Protestant, upholding for years the doctrine of the priesthood of the believer, there should be scores of theological seminaries for professional clergy, but not one primarily for lay men and women."

Trueblood said that as wonderful as the growth of the lay ministry is, it can actually be harmful because the answers given to perennial problems may be too simple to be adequate and some out-dated position may be confidently presented as the full gospel.

He suggested that since so many pastoral training seminaries are partly empty, some of them might be converted for the education of laymen.

"Somebody must pioneer in this and who can do it better than the Baptists," he said.

Earlier, the convention honored Hebert Philbrick, New York Herald Tribune columnist, as a "man who led three lives as citizen, 'Communist,' and FBI counterspy."

Philbrick a member of the First Baptist Church, White Plains, N. Y., was among 18 American Baptist lay men and women cited for significant contributions to community life and the life of the church.

Also, the convention voted unanimously to have membership in its churches open to all persons regardless of race or national origin, and at the same time shunned any membership in the Ku Klux Klan or White Citizens Councils.

The convention, representing 6,000 Bpatists Churches in 34 states, but not the deep South, adopted a resolution naming the open membership an objective for each of its churches.

It decried membership in the Ku Klux Klan, White Citizen's Councils, "and all exclusive groups that deny membership to others on the basis of race."

Raceway Deaths Are Accidents, Verdict Claims

CLARION, Pa. (UP) — A coroner's jury issued verdicts of accidental death Friday in a racing car accident which killed two children at Pinegrove Speedway.

The accident occurred Memorial Day when a wheel flew off a stock car during a race, bounced over a 12-foot fence and slammed into a group of spectators, killing Mary Lou Lindey, 8, Slippery Rock, Pa., and Harold W. Brunn Jr., 12, Gibsonia, Pa., and injuring three other persons.

The coroner's jury heard testimony of Ralph Quarterson, head of Otto Racing, Inc., which leased the speedway; Clinton Pratt, also an official of the firm; Edwin Garver, of Rimersburg, a guard at the track; Dr. Donald Rose, who attended the injured, and Charles F. Brand, of Allison Park, near Pittsburgh, who told of trying vainly to save the Brunn boy.

Brand, a friend of the Brunn family, said he first saw the wheel hurtling toward them when it was about eight feet away. He said he "tried to shove the youngster out of its path but it was too late."

Kai-shek Sorry About Attacks On U. S. Embassy

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek today publicly deplored last week's anti-American riots in Taipei and warned he would tolerate no opposition to his policy of friendship with the United States.

In a rear nationwide broadcast, Chiang said the riot "was one of the most shocking and most regrettable things to have happened throughout my 50 years" as leader of China.

"In the first place, I must openly admit that my leadership was at fault," he said. He did not elaborate on this point.

"Today," he added, "I must make it clear again to our people . . . we must stand on the same side with the United States which is the leader of the democratic nations, and that we cannot permit any opposition to this policy from within or without."

Nationalist troops rushed into Taipei to put down the riots were still on guard as Chiang issued his warning. The riots were sparked by a U.S. Court-martial's acquittal of an American soldier on charges of killing a Chinese peeping tom.

At least 1 Americans were injured and the U.S. Embassy and other American property sacked during the demonstrations. A mob attempted unsuccessfully to lynch the soldier, M. Sgt. Robert G. Reynolds, as he was being driven to the airport from the embassy with his wife and child to return to the United States.

Your Health—

Call MD if Cold Attacks Sinuses

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Generally, a cold is not really too much to worry about By taking a couple of aspirins, a hot bath and going to bed, you will likely be as good as new again in a few days with the ordinary cold

Sinus trouble, however, is something else again.

Since this might develop at any stage of the cold, you've got to be alert for symptoms which might indicate an attack upon your sinuses.

Any of the following should be a signal to you to call your doctor without delay:

A severe cold that continues for more than a week without improvement.

The mucous discharge from your nose which changes to a thick flow of a yellow color.

The fever which usually accompanies a cold that becomes worse.

Development of any localized pain in the cheeks, above or behind your eyes, or in the teeth or your upper jaw

A headache or series of headaches which become much more severe than the ordinary pain generally accompanying a cold

If you have had previous sinus trouble, you've got to be especially wary of any possible recurrence

Quick recognition of the fact that a cold has turned into a sinus condition may save you a lot of unnecessary discomfort and trouble.

While you might be able to handle a mild case of the common cold without professional medical aid, you will need prompt help from your physician for any sinus trouble

Generally, your chances of being cured are pretty good — if you act in time So see your doctor early.

Question and Answer

D U M Both my parents are allergic. Does this mean that I will have allergies also?

Answer: Children who have two allergic parents are more likely to have an allergy than those who do not, or have only one allergic parent.

There is also a greater tendency for the allergy to appear at an earlier age

Gisele Anxious to Begin Her Own Show

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — After four years of singing 300 - plus songs on "Your Hit Parade," Gisele MacKenzie finally gets her own show, thanks to a fellow violin player named Jack Benny.

When the pretty French - Canadian brunette adds up her life she gives credit for her success to the veteran comedian. Performers seldom take the time or trouble to sponsor another entertainer, but Jack has been largely responsible for Gisele's expanding career.

Next fall he unveils his protegee in her own live half-hour TV program on NBC, "The Gisele MacKenzie Show," produced here by the 39-year-old violinist himself.

"I met Jack five years ago when he saw me sing with Bob Crosby in Las Vegas." Gisele explained between rehearsals here for her last guest appearance of the season, on Sunday's "Chevvy Show" on NBC.

"He asked me to go on tour with him. Then I guested several times on his TV show. He's been such a great help."

Gisele's appearances with Benny showed she had other talents than singing upside down, sideways, etc., in those zippy production numbers on "Your Hit Parade." With Benny she displayed a flair for comedy and a talent for the violin.

As a result she wound up guesting on other shows and playing dramatic roles. This spring she quit "Your Hit Parade" and was signed by Benny for the new fall series

Many fans wonder why Gisele didn't have her own show long ago, but she insists, "I'm glad this didn't happen before I wasn't ready for it."

"But this spring I decided I'd been on the 'Hit Parade' long enough," she continued. "I felt it was time to do something else. I didn't want to wait until the audience tired of me.

Whether her move sparked a general cast change she doesn't know, but Dorothy Collins and the other singers on the popular program will not appear on it next all, either.

Gisele is "very excited and scared about her series" "because the responsibility is all mine". Benny set the format for her Saturday night show — "a loose one. One week I'll sing, another week I'll do skits with regular characters or have guest stars."

Some Rules In Good Packing

In preparing for a move from one home to another, there are a few simple rules underlying all good packing techniques. A listing of them is appropriate now that the moving season is here.

The rules are set forth in a manual which is used by all packers employed by Aero Mayflower Transit Company, one of America's leading movers of household goods. The packing tips follow:

1. All containers used should be strong enough to withstand a long trip.
2. When packing containers of any kind, place the heaviest articles on the bottom, the lightest articles on top.
3. Containers should be packed as compactly as possible. Shredded paper should be pressed gently, but firmly, around each article and as many items placed in each container as is safely possible.
4. Where proper, from the standpoint of good packing procedures, place together in the same container all pairs or sets of articles, all parts of the same article, or all articles which are used together.
5. Any surface or edge of an article that might be damaged must be protected by cushioning.
6. Articles which could possibly cause damage to another, even though well-cushioned, should not be packed in the same container.
7. Try to group articles from the same room in the same container.
8. Label each container with identification stickers of some kind.

If the budget permits — or even can be stretched a bit — employ the movers' professional packers to do the job for you, advises Aero Mayflower. The additional cost is modest, and usually is an economical investment in the long run, they say, in time and labor-saving, and in peace of mind.

Water Softener Can Eliminate Most Objections

With proper conditioning, most of the objectionable features of water in its natural state can be removed, The Water Conditioning Foundation points out.

Water hardness is the most frequently-heard complaint, because in 85 per cent of the country the water supply is classified as being anywhere from moderately to extremely hard.

A home water softener, installed at the point of intake, quickly ends such familiar hard water annoyances as soap curd in the wash, ring in the bathtub, and gray film on silverware and glassware.

A softener also will remove a certain amount of dissolved iron from the water supply, preventing rust-colored stains on fabrics and plumbing fixtures. If the iron problem is excessive, however, a special filter will have to be installed ahead of the softener.

The rotten egg taste of sulfur water, caused by dissolved hydrogen sulfide gas, can be removed with a special filter for that purpose.

Cloudiness, caused by suspended matter in the water supply, can be corrected with a clarifying sand filter.

'When All Else Fails, Read the Directions'

"When all else fails, read the directions."

Many thousands of fix-it enthusiasts do things the wrong way — even when the right way is clearly outlined on the containers of the products they are using.

Industries spend much money printing folders and labels with easy to follow instructions. Yet a customer who fails to get the full value from a purchase blames the particular product rather than his own failure to use it properly.

Paint offers a good example.

Paint these days is of a higher quality than it has ever been. Yet paint manufacturers get far more complaints than they ever did. There's rarely anything wrong with the make-up of the paint. It's just that so many so-called handymen are using the paints improperly.

Once paint was used almost exclusively by the professional. Today it is being brushed, rolled and sprayed on by millions of amateurs who never before thought of it except in terms of color.

Somewhere along the line many of these persons pick up bits of information which, perfectly factual in the case of one type of paint, may not apply at all in their particular projects. If a customer is fortunate enough to have a dealer who can guide him in the selection of the right kind of paint for the job, the customer rarely takes advantage of that knowledge.

Hardware dealers say that men are the worst offenders in this respect. The ladies don't hesitate to ask questions, but the men shy away from anything that might indicate they are inexperienced.

To be specific about popular misconceptions: The impression has gotten around that latex or rubber-based paint is an all-purpose paint, that it can be used under any and all circumstances. Yet the manufacturers themselves do not recommend it for kitchens, bathrooms and laundry rooms.

Rubber-base paint is sensitive to cooking vapors and can be adversely affected by water vapor, especially during the first 30 days after application. It is not as scrub-resistant as a gloss or semi-gloss enamel. But rubber-base paint spreads easier, faster and smoother than most old-style oil-base paints. Also it dries to the touch in less than 30 minutes and eliminates the use of solvents in cleaning brushes. The brush needs only to be rinsed under a faucet.

In short, rubber-base paint is a wonderful, modern product — if used properly.

There are many new paints on the market for special purposes. The synthetic - base paints, such as alkyd resin and polyvinyl acetate, are making great strides. But many persons will continue to buy and use paints which — close to perfection for particular needs — may give unsatisfactory results on surfaces for which they were not intended.

The most frequent misconception about exterior paint involves the use of the self-cleaning or chalking variety of white paint. Such self-cleaning paint stays white longer because the chalky film which forms on the surface slows erosion under the impact of weather. That makes it an ideal paint for frame houses with a complete exterior of wood siding.

But many ill-advised or non-advised amateurs use it on outdoor furniture, porch columns, window trim, or what is worse, on clapboard above brick or stone veneer. The result: Manufacturers get complaints that the paint comes off on clothes, streaks window panes and stains masonry.

It is necessary to wait from 30 minutes to four hours for a remover to soften the paint, depending on how many coats must be removed. This requirement is stated clearly in the directions on every can, not to mention the booklets that are available at all paint stores.

Use Wood to Build Hi-fi Cabinets

Many high-fidelity fans are building "entertainment walls" with cabinets of ponderosa pine.

The spacious cabinets house all the necessary hi-fi paraphernalia, record player and speakers, with plenty of storage for records.

A television set also can be included in the "wall." An ideal arrangement for this is to use a kitchen cabinet of ponderosa pine designed to hold a wall oven.

Comb Paint Brushes

Even the best paint brushes have a few loose bristles. Run a comb through a new brush before using it and whisk it against your fingers to release these strays and you won't be annoyed trying to pick bristles off a wet painted surface.

Lack of Insulation Can Bring Drafts

Home-owners who are puzzled by chilling drafts along floors, even when all doors and windows are closed should look to their walls for the answer. Chances are the trouble is lack of insulation. A cold, uninsulated wall chills the air next to it. Since cold air is heavier than warm air, the chilled air drops to the floor and goes scudding across it in a constant cold draft.

Mineral wool insulation helps prevent cold walls by blocking the passage of heat. The walls stay warmer, drafts are eliminated, and room temperatures are more healthfully uniform.
